A Cub.

Infant lions and bears are now generally spoken of as "cubs," but in former times the word "whelp" would have been used. Every edition of the English Bible from Wycliffe's time to 1611 gives "whelp" for the young of the lion or bear. A "cub" meant originally in English only a young fox. But by Shakespeare's time it was possible to talk of the "young sucking cubs" of a she bear, and Waller even applied "cub" to a young whale, now known as a "whif." The origin of "cub" is not really known, though the conjecture connecting it with the old Irish "cub," a dog, would make it akin to the Latin "canis" and English "hound."—Exchange.

ANTICS OF PURE GLYCERIN.

This Quaker Substance is Endowed With Peculiar Properties.

One of the great advantages of glycerin in its chemical employment is the fact that it neither freezes nor evaporates under any ordinary temperature.

No perceptible loss by evaporation has been detected at a temperature less than 200 degrees F., but if heated intensely it decomposes with a smell that few persons find themselves able to endure. It burns with a pale flame, similar to that from alcohol, if heated to about 300 degrees and then ignited.

Its nonvolatile qualities make the compound of much use as a vehicle for holding pigments and colors, as in stamping and typewriter ribbons, carbon papers and the like.

If the pure glycerin be exposed for a long time to a freezing temperature it crystallizes with the appearance of sugar candy, but these crystals being once melted it is almost an impossibility to get them again into the congealed state.

If a little water be added to the glycerin no crystallization will take place, though under a sufficient degree of cold the water will separate and form crystals, amid which the glycerin will remain in its natural state of fluidity. If suddenly subjected to intense cold pure glycerin will form a gummy mass which cannot be entirely hardened or crystallized.

Altogether it is quite a peculiar substance.

CHECK RAISERS AT WORK

After a talk with a check-protector salesman one feels like withdrawing all deposits. The only alternative to this course is to safeguard yourself with an immediate purchase of a check-protector.

But here again one is confronted with a problem demanding careful consideration. There are machines that protect and others that merely lull one into a feeling of confidence that should not exist.

M. P. Spiess, exponent of the virtues of the "New Era Check Writer," found a possible patron in Cottage Grove, that is, he felt that he could sell him a machine if the party had not already purchased a so-called "protector." What does Spiess do, give up his canvass in disgust?

Not Spiess. After raising checks of this man; one from $200 to $500; one from $4 to $40, all of which had been apparently "protected" by a machine of the figure punching variety, he did what was more to the point, sold him a "New Era."

The "New Era" writes out the check in full, puncturing the paper with acid proof ink. The check thus "protected" is absolutely safe from the check-raiser.

GERMAN SUBMARINE NOT YET LOCATED

Newport, R. I., Oct. 14.—The German undersea boat U-53, which sank five, and possibly six, steamships off Nantucket shoals last Sunday, had not been re-located by stations here early today, despite reports from the steamship Bovic yesterday that she had sighted a submarine "astern" 200 miles east of New York.

Look It to Herself.

There was a short, rotund woman standing in one of the ample doorways of the capitol, and there were other women about her. The short, rotund woman, however, was conspicuously present. A courteous senator came along with a couple of friends and remarked:

"I guess that we can get around this crowd."

"Don't you call me a crowd!" indignantly shouted the rotund woman, and the senator went on, smiling, but saying nothing.—Detroit Free Press

Shipping Pigs in Baskets. The lot of domestic animals in the far east is not enviable, particularly when enduring transport from one place to another. Pigs are always sent to market with their legs tied, so that it is impossible for them to move. Live pigs are transported in the Straits Settlements by steamer or barge, shipped singly in wicker work baskets just large enough to take a single pig. In this cramped and uncomfortable position, for the animal's legs are tied, making it nothing more than a living log, it is often shipped long distances. Water is thrown over the animals, and occasionally they are allowed to drink, but nothing is given them to eat.—Popular Science Monthly.
